

1 When you arrive at work one morning you find that someone you know has slept on the premises overnight. These are 'secure' premises. Should you report this action to your superiors?	2 A work colleague has a habit of frequently using coarse language. You tolerate it, but become aware that another [male] co-worker is highly offended. Do you request that fewer swear words are used?	3 You observe a co-worker speak in a demeaning and scathing manner to another team member in meetings. Do you ask them to stop this behaviour?
4 You manage the bar in an upmarket restaurant. When you arrive for an early morning shift you find many things out of place, including signs that alcohol has been consumed and not recorded in your 'takings' log. Should you report this as a possible 'break-in / theft'?	5 A work colleague is being apparently overly affectionate/ attentive to another colleague. This person appears to be uncomfortable but is saying nothing. Do you say something to either of them about what you are observing?	6 One co-worker refuses to contribute to keeping the kitchen area clean. This person is also the one most likely to leave dirty plates and cups in the sink. Do you say something to them about 'doing their bit' to keep things tidy?
7 As you are leaving work at the end of a double shift you realise that you have insufficient cash to pay for a taxi home [you are entitled to take a taxi and then claim it on petty cash the following day]. You know the manager does not secure the petty cash tin. Would you open it and take sufficient funds for the ride home?	8 At your work site there is a daily sandwich van where the food quality and service is highly variable – sometimes good, sometimes bad. As you walk away with your purchase one day you realise you were given $10 too much change. Today the service has been very slapdash - even rude. Do you return the over payment?	9 You are working on a desk job in an open plan office, and observe one member of your team who seems to spend more time reading the paper than doing any work. Do you say anything to them about what you are seeing?

10 As the new manager of a bookstore, you are told of a regular customer who buys many books and boosts the shop's income. You are also told they are kept in the car, as his wife does not approve and their income is limited. One day he arrives to buy $300 worth of books. Do you accept the purchase and say nothing?	11 You are inspecting some of your company's work in a large shopping centre when you see a person alternately staggering and leaning against a wall. Do you approach them to see if they need help?	12 You are working on a building site and you observe a site supervisor ignoring health and safety procedures and demanding that staff in that area do likewise. Do you say anything to anyone?
13 At work one day you overhear a male colleague describing how he had hit his girlfriend because 'she deserved it'. Do you listen in silence as he describes the event?	14 You notice a colleague is taking home new notepads and pens on a regular basis. Do you say anything to anyone?	15 On a site where attendance is 'clocked' on and off for safety reasons you observe a staff member regularly swipes another person's attendance card. Doing so allows that person to arrive late and not be penalised for attendance, but this may jeopardise safety procedures. Do you tell them that you know it is happening?
16 You are working in a project team of 5 people – three men and two women. One day you hear the two women speaking contemptuously about one of the other two male members of the team. They are not aware you have heard them. Do you let them know you have heard?	17 You notice that a colleague responsible for purchasing seems to be favouring one local supplier over others although there is no contract in place. Do you say anything to anyone?	18 Your boss penalises you for working 30 minutes less than your full week's shift, but then you learn that another person has been allowed to be 2 hours less than a full week's shift without penalty. Do you complain to HR about unfair treatment?
19 Your manager tells you to 'slow down'. It seems that your normal speed of work is 'showing up' slower colleagues. Do you do as asked?	20 In team meetings you become aware that one person's ideas are rejected without comment, while another's are always accepted. Do you support the person whose ideas are not being given a chance?	21 You are on a job rotation program at work, and are assigned to a work area where there are work safe notices on the wall. However the supervisor tells you to ignore them, and complete a task in unsafe conditions because they are in a hurry. Do you agree to complete the task?
